Course Description:

This is the first of the two intermediate-level macro theory courses (the second being ECON 359) required to major in Economics. This course introduces a basic macroeconomic model known as the IS-LM-AD-AS model. The model has numerous applications, some of which we shall discuss in this course. We will also use the model to study the effects of various macroeconomic shocks and policies on the economy.

Course Learning Outcomes:

After completing this course, students will know

- what the subject matter of macroeconomics is
- what the key macroeconomic variables are and how they are measured
- the conditions for equilibrium in the goods market (the IS curve) and the money market (the LM curve)
- AD-AS model of the medium run
 - how the joint equilibrium in the goods and money markets, together with an exogenously changing general price level, gives rise to the aggregate demand (AD) curve
 - the conditions for equilibrium in the labor market and how the labor-market equilibrium is related to the aggregate-supply (AS) curve
 - the factors that affect the joint equilibrium in the goods, money and labor markets (i.e. in the IS-LM-AD-AS model)
- how the IS-LM-AD-AS model for an open economy (the Mundell-Fleming model) differs from the one for a closed economy
- how to derive the Phillips Curve from the aggregate-supply curve and understand the policy implications of a negatively sloping Phillips curve
- how inflation and money growth are related in both the short run and the long run
- how to examine the possible effects of monetary, fiscal and exchange-rate policies using the IS-LM-AD-AS model
- what role expectations play in the IS-LM-AD-AS model
- the various types of economic crisis and how to analyze them within the framework of the IS-LM-AD-AS model
