Course Description:

The PhD Research Workshop (I and II) is for 3rd year and above PhD students. In this course, we will focus on developing good research and writing skills. This course will give students a forum to develop their research ideas, practice their presentation skills, and learn professional skills. We will pursue these goals through (i) workshopping research ideas and preliminary findings, (ii) writing and organizational tips to help focus one's research, and (iii) developing presentation skills. As part of the course students are expected to attend the departmental seminars (both the Friday visiting speaker seminars the internal Wednesday seminars).

Course Objectives/Learning Outcomes:

The goal of this course is to develop your professional writing and presentation skills as they pertain to your research. We will be using students' current research in the course, thereby helping students complete the various written components of their degrees.

We will focus a significant portion of the course on writing and research skills as they pertain to completing your PhD degree. As part of this, the course will help students communicate their ideas towards (i) find potential advisors, (ii) identifying and assessing research contributions as appropriate for professional and research protocols, and (iii) organizing a clear and interesting paper and presentation.

Course Outline:

In this course, students will be presenting their written work to colleagues for feedback and analysis. The focus of the fall term will be on developing a clear and concise research question, an appropriate methodology, and presenting this research in a clear manner. We will be using a "writing workshop" format for much of this course wherein individuals will be discussing one another's work in class.

Grade Determination and Final Examination Details:

There are no exams for this course. Students will be evaluated based on their completion of three research reports and a presentation.

First, student will prepare a referee reports on two of the Friday visiting speaker presentations. These reports should evaluate the paper, the presentation, and provide a thoughtful analysis of the research contributions. The reports should also include a critical analysis of the methodology and suggestions for future extensions based on the presented ideas. The reports can be submitted to the instructor at any time during the fall term but all reports must be submitted by December 14th. Late assignments will not be accepted.

Second, students will submit two research reports based on topics of their own choosing. Much of the course will focus on developing these reports. While the format of these reports is open, the emphasis will be on developing a clear communication of the proposed research. Students will sign up for workshops where we will discuss drafts of these reports. The final versions of these reports will be due November 19th and December 10th. Late assignments will not be accepted.

Finally, students will make a 15-minute presentation on one of their individual research reports. These will be scheduled during the term and finals week.
